

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A cold separation device for separating an elongate metallic member along its length.

The device has a separation unit having a driven blade, support member to support the elongate member upstream and downstream of the separation unit. The device further has to feed the elongate member towards and through the separation unit.

Boh

5ND9 380351